Mr Lloyd Garrison

My dear Sir; I thank you most-sincerely for your kind and interesting letter of counsel regarding the subject which I presented for your advice.

The only embarrassment in the way of making the contemplated change is a practical one, namely the probability or possibility of being for an indefinite season without that employment-so necessary to the support-of one's family.

But-I will not further trespass upon your attention or sympathy in this matter than to say that if any new Society movements or vacancies, of this kind, or any providential opening should come under your observation I should be very grateful if you would take the trouble to communicate with me upon the subject.

With hearty thanks for your favor, I remain, Most-Respectfully Yours,
B. A. Chase
